House Group Okays Sharp Cuts In Income Taxes On Dividends

Three-Year Plan Clears Committee

Washington (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee, bowing to a long-time plea from business circles, approved yesterday a three-year program of sharp reductions in taxes on income from dividends.

Staff experts said the proposed changes would mean a saving of 240 million dollars for about four million taxpaying stockholders the first year.

The ultimate loss in revenue was estimated at from 500 million to one billion dollars annually, when the cuts reach full effect.

A majority of committee Democrats reportedly resisted the move, but were voted down in a closed-door committee session.

This marked the first substantial controversy in a committee project aimed at rewriting almost all the nation's tax laws with a view to simplifying and clarifying them and removing alleged inequities.

The committee is acting page-by-page on recommendations drafted by Treasury and Congressional staff experts, after months of labor.

A Democratic move to require deduction of taxes at the source of dividend payments, much as taxes are withheld from wages, was beaten. Members said this was a straight party-line vote, 15 Republicans against 10 Democrats.

The new proposal eventually would relieve about one-third of the four million taxpaying stockholders from paying any federal taxes on their dividend income.

It provides that individuals will pay no income taxes on dividends up to $50 in the case of a taxable year ending between next July 31 and Aug. 1, 1955.

For later years, individuals would pay no income taxes up to $100 of dividends received.

Further, taxpayers would be allowed to deduct from their tax bill 5 per cent of all their dividend income above $50 received during the fiscal year, from next July 31 to Aug. 1, 1955.

The tax credit would be increased to 10 per cent of dividends above $10 the second year, and 15 per cent the third and ensuing years.

Thus a percentage of income would be deducted—not from taxable income itself—but from the actual tax payment the stockholder otherwise would face.

Business spokesmen long have attacked what they call "double taxation" of corporation profits. They argued that corporation profits are taxed first under regular corporation income taxes, and then taxed again under individual income tax laws as profits are distributed to individuals in the form of dividends.

The committee also approved new sections permitting workers to deduct transportation expenses, even those incurred in the worker's home town, as a business expense. This means workers could take the standard 10 per cent deduction allowed for such personal expenses as charitable contributions, medical expenses, and so forth, and still get a further deduction for transportation expenses incurred at work. It does not apply to expenses of commuting to and from work.

Plane Crashes; 4 Americans Among 16 Dead

By Webb McKinley

Rome, (AP) — A stricken Philippine Airlines plane, trailing smoke through a driving rain, veered from a course toward crowded apartments and crashed in a muddy field here yesterday with a bomb-like explosion.

Last Sunday a jet Comet of the British Overseas Airways Corp. plunged into the Tyrrhenian sea off Elba with a loss of 35 lives.

The Philippine liner, a four-engine DC6, was only a few minutes from Rome's Ciampino airport on a flight from Manila to London when it wavered and fell.

The force of the blast cut the plane and the victims into fragments, spread over a 200-yard area. The fuselage dug a 40-foot pit in the soft clay.

Capt. Ira Broome, 38, of Warren, Ark., a World War II veteran of the U. S. Air Force, headed the nine-man crew. The co-pilot was William Rose, a former Navy pilot from Alton, Ill.

Royal R. Jordan of Boston and Rome, the airline's European director, was among the passengers. The other American victim was listed by the line as G. Batavia, en route from Bangkok to Rome.

Marilyn Monroe Married To Joe DiMaggio; Judge 'Sorry' He Forgot To Kiss Bride

San Francisco, (AP) — Gorgeous Marilyn Monroe and Joe DiMaggio were married yesterday in what was supposed to have been a quiet ceremony, but wasn't.

Municipal Judge Charles S. Peery, read the civil ceremony in his chambers while an estimated crowd of 500 jammed the corridors of City Hall.

The curvaceous actress and the former Yankee baseball slugger didn't even let the judge know their plans until early yesterday afternoon. They wanted a quiet wedding with no fanfare.

Yet by the time they were married the crowd was so thick DiMaggio, his best man, restaurant manager Reno Barsocchini and Lefty O'Doul, had to elbow a pathway for Marilyn to the elevator.

Joe and Marilyn left on a brief honeymoon for an announced destination. "Just driving," Joe said.

He said they plan to make their home in San Francisco, going to Hollywood whenever Marilyn has a picture to make. But Marilyn said she has no plans for movies now.

On the marriage license, Marilyn's age was given as 25, Joe's 29.

Retailers Opposed To Broad Tax

New York, (AP) — Wade G. McCargo of Richmond, Va., re-elected yesterday as president of the National Retail Dry Goods Assn., disclosed that the organization will stage a "grass roots educational campaign" to fight proposals for a manufacturer's excise tax.

"We feel we must educate the consumer and the retailer as to just what such a tax would mean," McCargo declared at a news conference at the retail association's convention. The National Assn. of Manufacturers has called for a broadly based excise tax of 5 per cent on virtually all goods at the manufacturing level to replace the present excise tax system.

Joe was divorced by Dorothy Arnold, a film actress. They have one son.

Miss Monroe and DiMaggio had been virtually hiding out here for more than a week, primarily to keep their marriage plans secret.

As the couple left, with Joe saying "We've got to put a lot of miles behind us," the judge said regretfully:

"I forgot to kiss the bride, and I'm sorry."

Freezing Rain Expected To Follow Snow

By The Associated Press

A fast-moving storm dumped up to four inches of wet snow in Pennsylvania and forecasts of freezing rain last night brought urgent warnings from police for motorists to keep off roads if possible.

The snow swept into the Keystone State from the west and southwest. It moved eastward quickly. Most of the western area reported 3-4 inches by nightfall. About the same amount was predicted for the rest of the state.

A warning trend threatened to turn the snow to freezing rain and being extremely hazardous driving conditions.

The Pennsylvania Turnpike was snow-covered from the western end to Carlisle, partly covered from Carlisle to Reading and icy in spots leading to Valley Forge.

The Johnstown Airport closed because of poor visibility. Several flights had to be canceled.

Germans Speed Rearmament Bill

Bonn, Germany, (AP) — The West German Bundestag moved yesterday to change the constitution to speed German rearmament inside a European army.

With the solid backing of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's four coalition parties, the house gave initial approval to constitutional amendments authorizing creation of an armed force.

The coalition parties believe these amendments, when finally approved, will head off a Supreme Court ruling which could delay German participation in the proposed six-nation European army.

Fire Destroys Home Near Kresgeville

Kresgeville—Fire destroyed a frame house at Dotter's Corner yesterday morning, wiping out all the belongings of a young married couple.

Value of the house was estimated at $8,000 last night by Charles Allen Frantz, its owner.

Tenants in the house were Mr. and Mrs. Merrill S. Bruch. They had moved into the home before Thanksgiving last year.

Origin of the fire was not determined yesterday. The house was apparently consumed by the blaze some time between 10:30 a. m. and noon.

According to Mrs. Bruch, the former Patricia Ace, she and her husband left their home at 10:30 a. m. yesterday. With the couple was their ten-month-old daughter, Louise Ann, and the family's pet dog, "Blackie."

The Bruchs made a trip to Pen Argyl "on business."

Everything was "all right when we left the house," Mrs. Bruch said last night by phone. "Our home was heated by two kerosene stoves—one in the living room, the other in the kitchen. Both stoves were checked before we left. Both were turned down."

The Bruchs made their trip to Pen Argyl; turned around and started back home.

At about 12:15 the Bruchs approached their home. In the sky they sighted clouds of black smoke.

Pulling up the hill to their driveway, the Bruchs could see all the outbuildings on the property still stood intact.

But the six-room house in which they had lived was gone. Only a pile of smoldering ashes marked the spot where their home had been a few hours before.

Residents of the area had been attracted to the scene of the fire by towers of pitch-black smoke.

First persons to arrive at the fire were Warren Getz, Kresgeville potato wholesaler and a friend, Earl Murphy.

The two men had been returning from an inspection of Getz's potato storage facilities nearby. On the backstop road from Jonas Hotel near Kresgeville, the two men saw huge clouds of smoke pouring upward from the Dotter's Corner region; decided to investigate.

Getz and Murphy sighted the smoke at "about 11:30." They arrived at the scene at 11:45.

When the two men got to the Bruch home "it was already too late to try to save the house," Getz and Murphy said.

One side of the house had already caved in, Getz said, and the roof was partially destroyed. Flames were pouring from all windows of the house.

The Bruchs arrived back at the site of their home at "about 12:30." The house had been totally leveled by the fire. All the family's possessions were lost. The Bruchs had not taken out insurance on their household goods or other belongings, Mrs. Bruch said.

"Most of the things we had in the house had been bought over a period of time. A lot of planning had gone into them, but almost everything was paid for," Mrs. Bruch said. "Now it's all gone."

Among the items lost in the fire were "two double beds, a single bed, blankets, a hassinet, sheets, blankets, a living room suite, chests, dishes, silverware and some valuable reference books."

Also lost, Mrs. Bruch said were her diamond engagement ring and her wedding ring.

A cat—a second pet of the family—had been left in the home where it apparently was consumed by fire. Mrs. Bruch's credentials authorizing her to practice as a licensed practical nurse were also destroyed.

The house had stood in the Dotter's Corner area for many years. Neighbors last night estimated its age at between "65 and 75 years."

It was known in the area as the Charles Zacharias homestead.

None of the remaining five buildings on the farm were harmed by the fire, according to the owner.

A barn and four smaller buildings escaped damage. A small smoke-shed attached to the house was destroyed.

Although none of the Bruchs' possessions were insured, the house itself was partially insured, according to Frantz, a realtor in the area whose home is in Kunkletown.

The Bruchs have lived in Monroe County the past three years. During most of that period they resided with the husband's mother, Mrs. Ella Bruch at Saylorburg.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Bruch

India Decides To Turn Back POWs Jan. 20

Pannunijon, (AP) — India decided yesterday on its own to start turning back nearly 23,000 disputed prisoners to their captors Jan. 20—three days ahead of the deadline—and said it either side freed them it would violate the armistice.

In Washington, the U. S. Army chief of staff, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, told a Senate committee "I would think that serious consequences could flow from such an action on the part of custodial forces of India—a premature release." Ridgway said "I'd be concerned by the Communist reaction to such a release."

In Korea, the U. N. Command prepared to take back 22,500 Chinese and North Koreans from the anti-Red camp but went ahead with plans to set them free as civilians at 12:01 a. m. Jan. 23.

Nash, Hudson Directors Vote To Consolidate

Detroit, (AP) — Consolidation of Nash-Kelvinator Corp. and Hudson Motor Car Co. was approved yesterday by directors of the two companies subject to stockholder approval. Stockholder meetings will be held in March.

The resulting corporation will be known as American Motors Corp. Under the plan, Nash, Hudson and Kelvinator will operate as separate divisions of American Motors. The dealer and sales organizations will retain their separate identities.

The announcement said it was contemplated that A. E. Bari, president of Hudson Motors, will serve as a director and consultant and George W. Mason, president and board chairman of Nash-Kelvinator as president and board chairman of American Motors.

Under the agreement submitted to stockholders, three shares of Hudson stock will be converted into two shares of American Motors stock and each share of Nash-Kelvinator stock will continue as one share of American Motors.

Ridgway Sees No Danger Of War In North Korea

Washington (AP) — The Army's chief of staff reported yesterday that although the Communists have expanded their airbases in North Korea the Pentagon sees no signs that they intend to renew hostilities.

If there are any menacing changes in the situation, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the decision to withdraw two American divisions from Korea will be "at once reviewed."

Ridgway and Secretary of the Army Stevens appeared before the senators to urge ratification of a mutual security pact with South Korea. They said South Korea is an essential bastion for United States security in the Pacific.

Judge's Slayer Now Conscious

Warren (AP) — Norman Moon, 26-year-old courtroom slayer of Judge Allison D. Wade, regained consciousness from a self-inflicted bullet wound yesterday. Doctors gave him a good chance to survive.

Moon shot and killed Judge Wade, 51, Wednesday as he appeared before the bench for failing to keep up $30 a week support payments to his estranged wife. Moon fled and later fired a bullet into his neck as state police closed in.

Moon has been charged formally with murder.

Extension Of Program Also Recommended

By Douglas B. Cornell

Washington (AP) — President Eisenhower urged Congress yesterday to boost social security benefits quickly for America's older citizens and give 10 million more people protection from "the fear . . . of destitution."

Eisenhower also asked that the amount of income taxed for pension purposes be raised from $3,600 to $4,200, and that retired persons be allowed to earn more at parttime jobs without losing social security benefits.

Changing the tax base would mean that workers making more than $3,600 would find up to $12 more a year in social security deductions coming out of their pay checks. Their employers would have to match the amounts.

In a special, 2,700-word message to the lawmakers, the President proposed increases in both the lowest and highest amounts paid to retired persons or their survivors. He left it to Secretary of Welfare Hobby to fill in details for congressional committees later on.

But Chairman Daniel A. Reed (R-NY) of the House Ways and Means Committee beat Mrs. Hobby to it.

Minimum payments for retired individuals now are $25 a month, the maximum benefits $85 and the average around $50. For the social security system to "fulfill its purpose of helping to combat destitution," Eisenhower said, "these benefits are too low."

Reed said the plan is to provide increases ranging from $5 a month at the lowest level to $13.50 at the top for those now getting pensions. For persons retiring after the projected broadening of the tax base, the maximum could rise to $108.50—$23.50 over the present ceiling.

A wife gets half as much pension as her retired husband, so she would get a proportionate boost. So would widows and surviving children. The maximum benefits for a family could go up from $168.75 to $190 a month.

Reed introduced two separate bills to carry out the Eisenhower recommendations and said his committee would consider them in March, with full public hearings.

By the time they clear the House and Senate, it might be late summer or early fall. And bigger benefits might be coming along for some six million persons already on the rolls not long before the November elections in which the Republicans will be battling to keep the control of Congress.

The bills say the increases shall become effective the last day of the month following the month in which they are enacted.

Merchants Undertake Campaign To Wipe Out Shoplifting

Stores Losing Thousands Of Dollars Yearly

A merchants-sponsored campaign against shoplifting will be launched in the Stroudsburg soon, E. H. Wyckoff, president of Wyckoff's Department Store told members of the Stroudsburg Rotary Club at the Penn Stroud Hotel yesterday.

The veteran businessman said merchants lose thousands of dollars annually through stock-depletions, most of it chalked up to persons who thrive on articles lifted from store counters, and others who steal habitually to appease a desire to get away with something.

The movement against shoplifters was proposed recently by the Stroudsburg Merchants Association. Wyckoff, Donald Hays and Max Stadfeld were named to the committee.

Teen-agers are among the largest number of people who commit the offense, Wyckoff said. In past years hundreds of boys and girls were brought to his store office after being caught taking items in the building.

Wyckoff cited one case where a man stole 55 suits from Wyckoff's store. Later, the businessman said, this man returned to the Main St. retail outlet, and the employees "electrified" to see him back, watched his every movement. In spite of that, Wyckoff said, the man walked off with another suit of high quality.

Shoplifting accounts for about one-half of one percent of the annual business in Wyckoff's, the company president disclosed. While this may not seem like much money, he added, it amounts to a great deal when the annual business amounts to sizable proportions.

Wyckoff said his interest in tracing stolen goods once took him to a New York store noted as a "fence" for stolen articles. But it's practically impossible to break down this type of store because many even have managed to include local police in their coverage, Wyckoff declared.

One Washington, D. C. department store reported over $540,000 in stock-shortages last year, the speaker continued. At the Wyckoff store, the president said, the past Christmas shopping spree meant a loss of two $35 pocketbooks imported from Spain and a portable typewriter valued at $100 through shoplifting.

Wyckoff recalled how a local drive against known shoplifters resulted in merchandise being stacked high on long tables in his store after homes were searched. Merchants invited to the store identified numerous articles as those taken from their own business houses.

"We are going to prosecute in this new campaign," Wyckoff concluded. "Shoplifting is a very serious problem to merchants; one that accounts for thousands of dollars lost each year."

Robert Logan, program chairman, introduced Wyckoff.

Hospital Fund Defeated At Polls, Paper Raises Sum

Central Press Correspondent

Alliance, O.—A new formula for community fund-raising projects may have been accidentally uncovered by The Alliance Review in an unprecedented newspaper project.

Just concluded with a total of $207,800.72 given "over the counter" as a result of a "give as your conscience dictates" appeal expressed solely through the newspaper's column, is a free-will offering campaign that will assure this city a fine hospital.

It all came about because in two elections, a $225,000 bond issue to rehabilitate the old hospital unit, went down in defeat for lack of legal percentages, although in each election a majority of the people were in favor.

The rehabilitation is needed to make the old unit conform in modernity with the just completed $1,500,000 spanning new 105-bed wing made possible by previous municipal bond issues and federal funds.

Unless the money was raised for rehabilitation the city stood to lose $32,000 still available in federal funds. To qualify for the $32,000, the sum of $64,000 was needed and the city had $20,000 on hand.

Paul C. Siddall, general manager of The Review, inspired by the fact that the bond issues had received majority but inadequate votes, joined with Clarence D. Steffy, managing editor, in a "give what you please" invitation to the community.

Apparently all that was needed was the invitation. First, the aim was to obtain $34,000 new money to add to the $20,000 and the $32,000 for a grand total of $86,000. Within three weeks that quota was gained and the flow of money was so overwhelming that the goal was stepped up to a total of $150,000.

Mayor Harley R. Ewing, chairman of the hospital building commission, called in the architects and asked revised plans within the amount that would eventually be available, with the belief that the grand total would come near the originally-sought $225,000.

After five weeks, it was decided to set a deadline, and this was reached with a total of $207,800.72 available, of which all but $32,000 ($20,000 and $32,000) has been "over the counter" from approximately 5,000 givers. Siddall estilated the money was raised for rehabilitation the city stood to lose $32,000 still available in federal funds.

Record Business

Accustomed as we are in this commonwealth to business and industrial activity, it is nonetheless satisfactory to read the report of the Pennsylvania State University's Business Research Bureau in which record highs for 1953 are recorded.

While the bureau expressed the opinion that the definite end of the Korea boom was marked by a decline in industrial activity at year's end, it pointed to an overall industrial index of 5 per cent above that of 1952.

That general business activity in Pennsylvania was excellent, based on factory payrolls, industrial power sales, and bank debts, is a matter for continuing confidence in the state as we begin a new year. Even though the law of averages must always provide certain recessions from time to time from the highest levels attained in any twelve month period, the general anticipation will continue to be a hopeful one in our state's ability to provide for itself and for domestic and international trading.

It would be foolish, without a doubt, to assume that every time a high business index is reported by any research organization, an even higher index is to be anticipated in the next period reported on, but that the state as a whole is in an extremely healthy state cannot be denied.

Just as Pennsylvania has been the keystone state of the union from its very inception, so we who live and work within its borders will expect it to continue as one of the strong rocks on which our republic's future prosperity must be based.

Wheels of Government

In the interest of getting the Federal Government back on its feet financially, Joseph M. Dodge, the budget director, has announced that more than 7,000 automobiles will have been eliminated from the government's world-wide fleet of cars by next July 1.

Mr. Dodge, who drives his own car rather than using a chauffeur-driven taxpayers' car to and from his job, is acting in concert with the Eisenhower Administration's campaign to reduce excessive man and motor power in Government. Thus far, the Administration has released more than 170,000 persons from the Federal payroll, with no evident decrease in efficiency.

The government has had 62,000 automobiles in use by employees on a world-wide basis. The fact that Mr. Dodge is eliminating 7,000 of them does not mean that workers needing transportation will have to walk. But it does mean that those enjoying a free ride at taxpayers' expense will have to ride buses, taxis or use their own cars. The savings to the taxpayers, even after meeting such necessary taxi and other transportation expense as are considered legitimate by Mr. Dodge, will amount to more than $7 million annually.

In these days of multi-billion dollar budgets a savings of $7 million may seem somewhat insignificant, but little by little the Eisenhower Administration is chipping away to bring about the economies which were promised the taxpayer in the 1952 election campaign.

The Once Over —by H. I. Phillips

What? Never? Harry Truman is doing pretty well for an unemployed man. He just got $25,000, or a substantial part thereof, for telling a TV audience that he slept well. "I never took a sleeping pill in my life," he declared in the Ford Foundation in response to a question whether the heavy cares of the White House had ever caused a sleepless night. Never has a politician made an admission which could cost him more support. White Harry was sleeping so well all those years in Washington, millions of other folks were tossing and turning in their beds. They are pretty sore. Certainly they had a right to assume he was restless, too.

Few are the American voters who do not resent any man's boast that he has never had to count sheep. Truman's TV statement has made them resentful, full of envy and a little skeptical. A fellow who can't sleep well without a pill now and then can never feel affection for a man who has never had the need for one. It was comforting to countless Americans through those years of crisis and headaches to feel that the White House, too, was too worried to sleep soundly. People liked to think that Harry, like everybody else, punched the pillows, tugged at the sheets, counted lambskins and made a trip now and then to the medicine cabinet. We would have bet all the tea in China that Harry had taken a sleeping pill on those occasions.

(1) During the Hiss trial. (2) The night before Margaret's first TV show. (3) The night after General MacArthur's address to Congress. (4) The night before the 1952 election returns. (5) The night of the returns. (6) Any night in which he had gone to bed thinking of Joe McCarthy.

The news that in his 69 years he never had the slightest difficulty sleeping may have a historic consequence. "I never took a sleeping pill in my life," can become as attached to Truman in the history books as Washington's "I did it with my little hatchet." (Washington never told a lie. Lincoln never left a log unsplit. Cleveland never passed up a fishing trip. Truman never took a pill.) He can be best known to future generations as "No Pill" Truman. Just as homes and inns are pointed out as the places where George Washington once slept, there may come a day when old houses may bear a tablet. "Here Harry S. Truman, President of the United States, Scorned Insomnia." There may even be a bed in which Truman had no trouble passing out in three or four minutes. (Now we know what that middle initial "S" is for.)

Sheep counting, we take it, is for snailgosters. "No matter how troubled I forget everything when I go to bed," he said, in one of the highest priced utterances on sleep in history. Well, it made us so jealous we haven't had a good night's sleep since. President Eisenhower hasn't done too well, either. (But he should realize that Truman always had a certain advantage—not being a golfer, he never had to lie in bed wide-awake and go over every hole of that bad round.)

We know a Democrat who is still sure because Harry Truman's TV appearance came on during Ollie the Dragon and Zoo Parade. Robert Anderson, whose "Tea and Sympathy" will make him rich, wrote a score of plays before getting one accepted. Got his early training in Harvard drama shop. We think that there would be just as good a chance for agreement with Russia if all those conferences were held on a ski slide. The National Motorboat Show, for years held in Grand Central Palace—the very heart of Gotham—opens this week in Kingsbridge Armory, away up so far north around Pelham Parkway that visitors should carry compasses, charts and marine glasses. We never dreamed a yacht show could drift that far. Gulfstream Park, Florida, will introduce a TV showing of all photo-finishes and protested races. Fans will see the jockey making the protest, watch the interview with the stewards, etc. (Our yen is to see a TV picture right after a race in which we can see exactly how we look tearing up a $2 ticket.) Ed Murrow has the most gripping eyes on the video screen, and they are one reason why he holds the audience so completely. His recent "Resources for Freedom" one-hour telecast was terrific and should be shown in every school and college.

The lighthouse on Dungeness, England, is now flood lit to prevent thousands of birds, dazzled by the light, from dashing themselves against its tower.

The hand sickle, such as was used by the ancient Egyptians to harvest grain, continued in general use until the late 1700s.

Robert S. Allen Reports

Democratic Chairman Is Now In Running Fight

Washington—Former Governor Adlai Stevenson has been hearing some harsh talk about a top political lieutenant.

Target of this back-stage blasting is National Chairman Steve Mitchell. Influential Democrats and other Stevenson supporters throughout the country are bombarding him with angry complaints about Mitchell. Some of the irate critics even go so far as to blurt out that the Chicagoan be replaced.

Party insiders are saying the complaints are strikingly similar. They add up in general to the following:

That while Mitchell is meticulously honest and forward-looking in notable contrast to certain of his predecessors, he is also politically inept and naive, trigger-tempered, and strongly given to saying and doing the wrong thing at the wrong time.

Two recent glaring instances of this penchant for bungling had a lot to do with stirring up the inner storm against Mitchell.

The first episode was his extraordinary row with Tom Meuchling, militant young Stevenson leader in Nevada. Meuchling, who was narrowly defeated for the Senate in 1952 when Senator Pat McCarron bolted the Democrats and threw his support to the GOP incumbent, sharply challenged Mitchell's acceptance of a $2,500 contribution from McCarran to help wipe out the National Committee's debt. Mitchell retorted by hotly attacking Meuchling and speaking kindly of McCarran.

This drew sharp protests from a number of Democratic leaders, particularly in the East, the main source of the party's funds, where McCarran's standing in the party also is very low. Some "howled out" Mitchell personally, and others voiced their indignation to Stevenson.

This backstage furor had barely subsided when Mitchell whipped up another much bigger and hotter.

This was his series of derogatory statements about Americans for Democratic Action. One of these caustic cracks was a TV announcement that the "Democratic party can get along without ADA."

At the very time Mitchell was uttering these frank views, Adlai Stevenson, former President Truman, former Attorney General Francis Biddle, former Interior Secretary Oscar Chapman, Senator Paul Douglas, Philadelphia Mayor Joseph Clark, and numerous other party notables were scheduled to address fund-raising meetings under ADA auspices all over the country.

This time, even Mitchell quickly realized the fat was in the fire.

Insiders say his speedy perception was appreciably accelerated by some frank comments from Stevenson.

Also, through the Illinoisan's forceful intervention, Mitchell reversed himself and made peace with ADA. But it's purely a surface truce. He is still spitting privately about ADA, and the latter will harpoon Mitchell the first good opportunity that presents.

Politics—Henry Cabot Lodge, chief U. S. delegate to the United Nations, is telling friends that he will definitely seek to regain the Senate seat he lost in 1952. Lodge says his greatest ambition is to be a senator. Should Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.), decide not to run again, Lodge will jump into the race with the hearty approval of President Eisenhower.

The Democratic upset in last year's local Philadelphia election is having a depressing effect on the gubernatorial ambitions of District Attorney Richard Dilworth. According to lieutenants, Dilworth is no longer keen about running for governor this year.

If Representative Sam Yorty (D., Los Angeles) does throw his hat into the ring against Senator Thomas Kuchel (R., Calif.), Yorty will also try to hold out to his seat in the House. The inside word is he will seek the Democratic nomination both for senator and representative.

The Democratic gubernatorial scramble in Nevada promises to be a hectic one. Two candidates already have announced and three others are giving every indication of joining the fray. The latest aspirant is Merrill Inch, Jr., 40-year-old former Reno newspaperman and radio executive.

Try and Stop Me —by Bennet Cerf

The Wall Street Journal ran an article elaborating on the extreme shortage of skilled secretaries in the California area. "Efficient, well-trained Girl Fridays," it concluded, "can now have their pick of jobs with salaries as high as ten thousand dollars a year, not to mention special inducements like free vitamins, country club memberships, etc."

This article did not sit well with John Price, Minneapolis insurance executive. He wrote angrily that several secretaries in his office read the article and it was demoralizing to their morale to hear of these greener pastures elsewhere. His secretary, Beverly Voss, duly typed the letter and Mr. Price signed it. Then, Miss Voss, formerly of Oyatonna, Minn., added a postscript: "I think the article was terrific. I've just bought my ticket for California!"

George Sokolsky Says...

Dean Says Chinese Communists Playing For Recognition, Not Korean Solution

Referring to China, in his "State of the Union" message, President Eisenhower said: "...We shall continue military and economic aid to the Nationalist Government of China."

The single reference to the subject evoked great applause from the Congress, but only after the message had been carefully read did it become clear that not one word was said about the more critical question on the American policy toward Communist China. Regarding this, President Eisenhower did not say what American policy is.

Referring to South Asia, President Eisenhower said: "In South Asia, profound changes are taking place in free nations which are demonstrating their ability to progress through democratic methods. They provide an inspiring contrast to the dictatorial methods and backward course of events in Communist China."

This does not answer the question of recognition of Communist China. It is no secret that an effort was made out of Washington to give the impression that Vice President Nixon, after his return from the Far East, favored such recognition. Nixon, realizing what was being done, hit out straight with a total denial of his support for such recognition. He said that he opposed it. Republican Senate Majority Leader William F. Knowland, in a "Meet the Press" discussion last Sunday, most emphatically opposed recognition either by the United States or the United Nations. The British are employing all their strength to bring about the recognition of Communist China. It is the focus of their diplomacy at this moment. They resent the American resistance to what they regard as an essential trade policy.

A factor in this situation is Arthur H. Dean, our most recent negotiator at Panmunjom and law partner in Sullivan and Cromwell of both John Foster Dulles, Secretary of State, and Allen Dulles, head of the C. I. A.

Dean has gone through a harrowing experience with the Chinese Communists at Panmunjom. Undoubtedly he was sent on this mission because of his close relations to the Secretary of State and his ability as a negotiator. He had also been associated with the Institute of Pacific Relations. In a letter to Clayton Lane, executive secretary of the Institute, as recently as April 18, 1949, he wrote:

"I realize that you have come into an exceptionally difficult situation, but I think we might go back to the publications of the Institute and with the help of Larry Rosinger point out the difficulties our State Department is now facing in attempting to get up a constructive policy for China. I think we might make a very real contribution to the subject if we could state very objectively, but explicitly, problems which we now face in China. I am sure Owen Lattimore would be a great help in this."

In this same letter, he said the following: "I hope you won't get discouraged. It is tough but I think worth while. You have my complete support but (1) I would not mention the Communist attack in relation to IPR publications, (2) for income tax as well as policy reasons I would not indicate we are engaged in pro- or anti-Communist attacks, (3) I would not indicate you have been brought in, to relieve a bad situation. Some way we must solve the Russian problem. It's up to us to find out what makes them tick; why they are what they are; it's not up to us to fight Communism. If we try that we have no function; we must expose how it works, what it is, what it does, when it fails."

A man who could in 1949 write, "it's not up to us to fight communism," surely should not have been hurt by Chinese Communists. But they were him down. He returned to the United States. What intellectual and psychological effect this has had upon Dean, I do not know. Varying reports come out of the State Department to the effect that he finds the present situation hopeless because the Chinese Communists are playing for recognition, not for the solution of the Korean question. I have not attempted to confirm these reports because what really matters is whether the State Department, in a justifiably desperate desire to get out of the Korean situation, will finally decide to offer Red China recognition in the hope that thus some progress will be made in the negotiations.

Had President Eisenhower mentioned this subject, the response might have been startling.

Since 1900, the United States has produced about 129 million motor vehicles.

Although crickets are about an inch in length, their chirp can be heard for almost a mile.

Looking At Life —by Erich Brandeis

On the way home from New York City I met a fellow I know.

He isn't anybody I like an awful lot — just a little too much of the backslapping, his neighbor, sort of a guy. He's the kind who calls you by your first name the minute he meets you and has a tendency to get just a bit too familiar with your women, even if there isn't the slightest provocation.

Heaven knows I am no moralist. Somebody wrote me the other day and asked whether I practice what I preach. "You seem just a little too good for this world," he wrote. "Have you ever looked in the mirror and noticed whether there is a halo around your head?"

The whole trouble with me is that I have two mirrors. One of them shows me the way I look. The other might be called the 3-D mirror. It shows me what I AM.

You cannot buy these 3-D mirrors in any store. They are not just ordinary looking-glasses into which you look with your naked eye. You look into them with your MIND's eye and clearly see what's INSIDE of you.

And one thing they also seem to show up is what you might have been if you hadn't been such a darn fool when you were much younger.

Well, this being still very early in the new year, I asked this fellow how he had enjoyed the holidays.

"Please don't mention it," he replied. "Christmas and New Year's have given me the biggest headaches I ever had in my life."

It seems that his office had had a Christmas Eve party. The boss had sent out word that all bars were down and he wanted everybody to be himself.

So this fellow took the boss literally and WAS himself. That's where he made the greatest mistake of his life.

After he had a few drinks in him he was exactly "himself." One of the troubles with vener-is that it can't stand alcohol. Just watch one of your tables when liquor is spilled on it and not wiped off right away.

So this chap told his boss just what he thought of him. All the while he slapped him on the back, called him "brother" and put his arm around his shoulder. He told him he was stingy, he was too strict with his employees, he kept chasing all the good looking girls and he was a no-good, contemptible son of a biscuit maker.

You'd think that with his arm around the boss's shoulder he could have felt the rising heat. But he was too drunk. The boss laughed, all the employees who heard the fellow laughed, although somewhat embarrassed, and he was very proud if himself for a while.

"I sure told him off!" he boasted to his fellow workers when the boss had left. Next pay day he was fired on the ground that they were laying off people — and New Year's eve he got drunk again in order to get over the loss of his job.

Somebody gave President Eisenhower a Christmas present consisting of a gadget depicting a reveler clinging to a lamp post. When wound up the gadget played "Show me the way to go home."

Such a gadget might be in every home where too much was said is frequently going on. It might remind the owner that if he can't even find his way home, he is liable to wind up in jail or without a job.

Citizens Protest Shifting Of Brodheadsville Police Station

Petitioners Carry Fight To Governor

Brodheadsville — A petition signed by over 600 area residents protesting the shifting of State police barracks here to Fern Ridge, was taken to Harrisburg this week.

Backed by the West End Lions Club, which moved for the action at the annual meeting recently, the petition asked that the sub-station remain where it is, The Daily Record learned last night.

Lloyd Altomose, named secretary of the special committee, told The Daily Record that B. K. Williams, East Stroudsburg, presented the document to Gov. John S. Fine this week, but that apparently lack of time cancelled any change for action now. The state police are scheduled to move into Tunkhannock Township Sunday.

Altomose said the main reason for the protests is the opinion by West End residents that their area will not receive proper police attention. The movement, he said, extends the lines of Stroudsburg barracks to Saylorsburg area and Poik and Eldred Townships now will be under jurisdiction of Lehigh.

Persons wanting police assistance also will be forced to make telephone calls through several exchanges, Altomose added. Presently Tunkhannock area residents call through only two exchanges to reach the barracks here, Altomose said, but next week additional exchanges will be included.

"According to the impression I got, Gov. Fine was very much put out by the move," Altomose reported. He said he understood the agreement for the shift was made in June. "I haven't heard one good reason for it," Altomose added.

A survey through the school system has disclosed that 8,000 persons live in this region while only 264 are in Tunkhannock Township, the secretary said. Because of the densely populated section residents here feel they should have continued service, it was explained.

Assisting Altomose on the committee appointed by Lions Club officials are Rev. Adm. Bohner, Andrew Keiser, Rep. John Shotwell, Walter May and M. L. Serafas.

A report of negotiations is expected to be presented next Wednesday night when the Lions Club meets at Chestnut Hill Inn.

Altomose said, "I don't know what the club will do about it but the Lions never give up a project they've started." Altomose indicated there is a good possibility steps may be taken in the future to have the police service returned here from Fern Ridge.

Guilty Plea Entered To Aiding Dees

New York City — Former Police Inspector Valentine Correll, often accused of protecting bookies, has pleaded guilty to an indictment for conspiracy to aid the Dalesio (or Dee) brothers on Staten Island.

His plea came as a surprise. Correll has denied sheltering bookies both in Brooklyn and on Staten Island. Supreme Court Justice Felix C. Bengiva said he would sentence him Feb. 15.

Correll, once in charge of all uniformed policemen on Staten Island, was indicted by the special Richmond County grand jury which, under Special Prosecutor William B. Herlands, has been investigating gambling and official corruption.

He was one of seven former policemen scheduled to go on trial before Justice Bengiva on Monday. It is now expected that at least three other policemen will change their pleas before the start of the trial. All are charged with protecting gamblers and accepting bribes from the Dee brothers to permit the latter to operate their bookmaking ring on the island.

Board Votes Increases In Salaries

A number of salary changes were made yesterday during a meeting of the county salary board.

On the board were County Commissioners Amos F. Altomose, W. Adolph Kake and Granville Shifler, and Treasurer Frank J. Welker.

Mrs. Frances J. Williams, secretary to President Judge Fred W. Davis, received a salary increase of $5 weekly. Marion Fabel, secretary to Superior Court Judge Chester H. Rhodes, received a $200 yearly increase.

Salary of court clerks and tip-staves was increased from $7 to $9 a day. Those acting in these positions during the year included John Swineford, Henry Hester, J. Clarence Shafer and Mrs. Anna G. Wright.

School Board Seeks Bids

East Stroudsburg School Board voted last night to advertise for bids for second class school supplies—those costing $500 or more.

Other matters transacted were of a routine nature. Balance on hand in the general fund was reported as $56,231.30; 1945 series sinking fund, $13,871.22; and 1952 series sinking fund, $1,072.62.

Councilmen Start Work On Budget

Stroudsburg council last night began work on the 1954 budget.

Regular account budget, covering all operations except sewer, was left open because of lack of figures on liquid fuels tax collections from the County of Monroe.

Only last Monday council filed its formal request with County Commissioners for the aid. It will not be until commissioners start work on their 1954 budget that an answer can be expected.

This year's budget for sewers is taken up largely with rental payments to the Stroudsburg Sewer Authority under a lease-back arrangement for the sewers. Other items include operating costs and a sewer bond issue.

The Authority will meet next Monday to study bids on a $320,000 bond issue which will finance expansion of the existing sewer treatment works and extend sewers to all that portion of Stroudsburg West of Pocono Creek.

Mrs. Osborne Dies At Home, South Sterling

South Sterling — Mrs. Celia B. Osborne, 82, died at her home here Wednesday morning following a long illness.

Born in Greentown, she was the daughter of John and Frances Simon Burrus and was a lifelong resident of this area.

She was a member of Methodist Church here; WSCS and the Bible Class for 54 years. She held church memberships in Ladies of Paupack Rebekah Lodge 859; American Legion Auxiliary; Past Grands of Rebekah Association; and Daughters of America.

Surviving are her husband, Lyman; three sons, Truman, South Sterling; Oliver, Honesdale, and Ross, Springfield, Pa.; a daughter, Mrs. Mae Gilpin, Sterling; eight grandchildren and one grandchild.

Services will be 2 p.m. Sunday at the residence here with Rev. Harry Root officiating. Burial will be at Pine Grove Cemetery.

Friends may call at the residence Saturday afternoon. Rebekah Lodge will hold services there at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Free funeral home here arranged services.

The money that would have purchased her a TV set instead will go toward buying braces for some young polio victim, Small said.

Miss Marie Brown, who heads the Mothers March again this year, discussed plans for that event Jan. 26. It looked as though Mothers March would have to shoulder an even bigger portion of the load than it did last year—for two reasons: because returns are slow in the campaign to date, and because the goal has risen from $12,000 to $16,000.

After the discussions, the group saw two films dealing with the polio campaign, Mothers March activities, and progress in polio research.

C. Of C., Vacation Bureau Committee Selects Choice For Executive Secretary

Five directors of the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce and Vacation Bureau, acting as a committee to weed out applicants for the position of executive secretary, made a final selection yesterday afternoon.

The committee reserved announcement of their conclusion until Monday, however.

LeRoy Mikels, new president of the Chamber and one of the members of the application committee, said the name of the man selected by the committee will be presented Monday night to the full Chamber board.

This board, made up of more than 30 Chamber members, is slated to meet at about 5:30 p. m. Monday immediately preceding the full meeting of Chamber membership.

Mikels, in saying that the committee had reached a decision on the man it felt best suited for the job, noted that he and other committee members believed the name should be submitted first to directors before it was made public.

Members of the selection committee meeting yesterday at the Penn-Stroud in Room 201 were Mikels, Dale H. Learn, Harry Ahnert, Sen. Montgomery F. Crowe and Ted Jenkins.

At a previous meeting on Jan. 5, the committee had studied a total of 14 applications for the job as Chamber-Vacation Bureau executive secretary. Three verbal applications brought the total to 17, Mikels said.

At that meeting the committee successfully reduced the total number of applications set aside for further study to less than half the original number.

For yesterday afternoon's meeting, the committee continued its study of a remaining five applicants. After lengthy discussion, the committee successfully eliminated all but the name of the applicant which will be submitted to full membership on Monday night.

Vacancy of the executive secretary post was created three months ago by the resignation of Jacob Wachtman.

In subsequent discussions of the project to fill the post, it was decided that:

The Chamber of Commerce and Vacation Bureau should share equally in the time expended by the secretary on his job.

A salary of $5,000 per year, plus commissions of 15 per cent on all membership fees in excess of $35,000 paid into the two organizations.

These decisions were results of a meeting on Dec. 21, at which outgoing president Dale H. Learn presided.

In addition to studying applications for the position the selection committee has also been considering the outline of responsibilities inherent in the secretary's position.

Results of the latter portion of the study have not been made public.

Stroudsburg, Rev. William F. Wunder officiated. Interment was in Prospect Cemetery.

Palbearers were Earl Sandt, Earl Lee, George Colvin and Joseph Scott.

State Gives County Road Route Number

A six-mile stretch of highway which never had an official route designation has been tagged with a number, State Highway Department superintendent Arthur Dinstel reported last night.

Approval has been granted in Harrisburg for extending Route 196 from Mount Pocono to the intersection of Route 290 just north of Analomink.

Requests of resort operators along the highway prompted the state to number the Paradise Valley thoroughfare, Dinstel said.

Hotel owners, while using Route 90 in the past, were aware that the number was incorrect, since this highway branches off at Paradise House to Cresco.

Dinstel said the road has not been posted yet but made his announcement so property owners there may prepare their brochures and other pamphlets in advance of the vacation season.

Once the highway markers are up, the road from the Route 290 intersection to Paradise House will bear two separate markings: Route 90 and Route 196. But from Paradise House west to Mount Pocono and the intersection with Route 611, the road will be known as Route 196.

The entire extension of Route 196 covers 9½ miles, Dinstel said.

Benjamin Franklin Had The Spark! Versatile American Was Forerunner Of Electric Age

Benjamin Franklin
By HENRY C. NICHOLAS
Central Press Correspondent

Philadelphia — Jan. 17 is the 243rd anniversary of the birth of the most versatile of all Americans, the one man in the history of the world who made a solid scientific reputation by flying a kite. The son of a tallow-chandler and taken out of school after two years, Benjamin Franklin became one of the most prominent scholars of his century.

Franklin was always fascinated with kite-flying, and long dreamed of using kites as a source of energy for man. The one event he most vividly remembered in his old age laden with honors, was the day he used a kite to propel him across a large lake.

Had he not been a good swimmer he might have drowned in his many experiments, when the wind died down and left him stranded in the middle of the lake.

Franklin finally succeeded in towing a row boat across a lake, but failed in the attempt to tow a ferry across a river through the use of kites.

Franklin's inquiring mind was strongly attracted by the mystery of electricity, and his experiments, carried him far ahead in this field of other European and American scientists of his day. It is recorded that his house in Philadelphia was "continually full" of visitors to see the new wonders of his experiments.

In one of these experiments, in which Franklin charged two six-gallon jars with electricity, he knocked himself unconscious with the current. Franklin thus became known as the first man ever electrocuted in America.

As a result of these experiments, Franklin formulated the theory that there were two kinds of electricity, and to this day we use the names he applied—positive and negative.

Old Ben also built the forerunner of the modern condenser, an essential in electronics. He placed sheets of tin foil between glass plates; while today engineers wind the tin foil between strips of insulating paper.

Franklin was oddly quiet, possibly because of possible ridicule by his associates, over his theory that lightning was electricity and his decision to prove his theory by flying a kite in a thunder storm.

The result of all this secrecy is that the exact day on which Franklin flew his historic kite is a mystery. All we know is that it was during one day in summer some 200 years ago, and most historians believe it was in late June of 1752.

How many such experiments Franklin made is not known. It was not until Oct. 19, 1752, that he wrote giving the results of his experiments. In this paper Franklin explained how to construct a kite to draw lightning to earth.

"Make a small cross of two light strips of cedar," he wrote, "the arms so long as to reach to the four corners of a large thin handkerchief when extended; tie the corners of the handkerchief to the extremities of the cross, so you have the body of a kite; which being properly accommodated with a tail, loop and string, will rise in the air like those made of paper; but this being of silk is fitter to bear the wet and wind of a thunder-gust without tearing.

"To the top of the upright stick of the cross is to be fitted a very sharp-pointed wire, rising a foot or more above the wood. To the end of the twine, next the hand, is to be held a silk ribbon, and where the silk and twine join, a key may be fastened.

"This kite is to be raised when a thunder-gust appears to be coming on, and the person who holds the string must stand within a door or window, or under some cover, so that the silk ribbon may not wet; and care must be taken that the twine does not touch the frame of the door or window.

"As soon as any of the thunder-clouds come over the kite, the pointed wire will draw the electric fire from them, and the kite with all the twine, will be electrified and the filaments of the twine will stand out every way and be attracted by an approaching finger.

"And when the rain has wet the kite and twine so that it can conduct the electric fire freely, you will find it streams plentifully from the key on the approach of your knuckle."

The publication of this paper created a minor sensation and was read before the leading scientific societies in England and France. One result was that the Royal Society of London awarded the Copley medal to this unscientific scientist, inventor, philosopher, statesman and writer. Harvard, Yale and William and Mary colleges gave him degrees of master of arts.

Announcing The New Packard CLIPPER

The new Packard CLIPPER Panama Hardtop! Sportiest car in the new CLIPPER line.

See the 1954 Packard line at your dealer's beginning Friday, January 15th.

America's Newest Medium-Priced Car!

Luxury at a lot less...because Packard builds it

A year ago the Packard CLIPPER was introduced as America's newest medium-priced car.

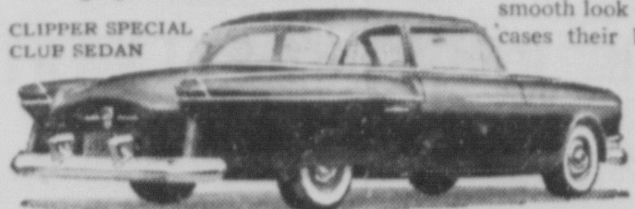

■ And men who know were quick to say: "That's a lot of car for the money!"

■ And it was a lot of car for the money. Because Packard builds it.

So the news spread!

■ And in 1954 the new CLIPPER brings you fine-car luxuries, fine-car

power, fine-car ride . . . (the high-price features everybody wants) . . . and yet at a popular, medium price!

■ We have built a finer car for '54 because experience in '53 proved that there are many thousands of Americans who want a true luxury car in the medium-price range.

■ Most cars in the medium-price field are simply big brothers of smaller cars made by the same company. These cars may offer the modern gadgets and the smooth look of the big car, but in most cases their basic engineering is still influenced by small-car engineering.

"Packard-built" makes the difference

■ No feature or claim will ever give you a more powerful reason for buying a CLIPPER than the name Packard.

■ You'll find the reason when you take command of a Packard CLIPPER and put it through its paces over a road of your own choosing. Make that date with "Packard-built quality at a popular, medium price" very soon . . . won't you?

■ You'll get luxury for a lot less in a Packard CLIPPER.

Since you can't test the new Packard CLIPPER at the famous Packard Proving Ground, get the story, fact by fact, on the pocket proving ground at your dealer's. But don't stop there! For the real thrill, drive a CLIPPER.

Plus state and local taxes, if any, for Clipper Special Club Sedan (illustrated at left). Optional equipment, including white sidewall tires, extra. Prices may vary slightly in nearby communities due to shipping charges.

Did you know you can buy a Packard CLIPPER for as little as $2630

Rep. Kearns Denies Strike Votes Costly

Washington, (AP)—Rep. Carroll D. Kearns (R-Pa.) said yesterday he feels every worker should have an opportunity to express secretly whether he wants to go on strike. He made the statement in taking issue with those who say a government-controlled strike ballot would be too costly.

Kearns, a member of the House Labor Committee, introduced a bill to require employees to vote secretly on whether they want to strike in February, 1953.

The board would be required to certify the results of the vote to the union and the employer not more than five days after the voting.

President Eisenhower has recommended government-conducted secret balloting in strike situations. There has been some debate whether the President was advocating a vote before a strike began or after it was underway. Wednesday, the President said he would let Congress decide the timing question.

Sen. Irving M. Ives (R-N.Y.) of the Senate Labor Committee has said the proposal would be too costly.

Kearns said the cost of a government-conducted vote would be "negligible."

Shroyer To Support Duff For Gubernatorial Nomination

Shamokin, (AP)—John U. Shroyer, former state highways secretary, said yesterday he would circulate gubernatorial nomination petitions for U. S. Sen. James H. Duff next month.

"I'm picking up the petitions tomorrow and I'll start circulating them on the first legal day to do so—Feb. 23," he announced.

Shroyer, a dress manufacturer who backed the Duff-Fine ticket in the Republican primary fight of 1950, conferred with Duff at Washington this week.

Asked if Duff told him he would run for governor this year, Shroyer said:

"He wouldn't say yes or no but I'm very hopeful."

Shroyer said a personal canvass by him in some 35 counties showed "a tremendous sentiment" for Duff to seek another term.

"On the basis of that I'm for him—and I'm starting this draft movement," he said.

Shroyer said despite his support of Gov. John S. Fine four years ago the governor has refused to see him.

"Duff never ran away from a fight in his life—and he won't this time."

Ironically, it was Shroyer who bucked the Republican organization in the 1946 gubernatorial when Duff was first elected governor. Sen. Edward Martin, then governor, fired Shroyer as highways secretary when the Shamokin man sought the GOP gubernatorial nomination.

Shroyer said Fine has created "a lot of antagonism" in the Republican party because the governor has "forgotten the men who elected him."

"This is going to be a fight to the death," said the industrialist. "The man who is endorsed by Fine is going to get licked."

The governor was unavailable for comment.

through THICK and THIN

Through the thick of a winter snowstorm—or over thin glare ice . . .

Over thick slush—or through the thin, sharp light of sun on snow-banked roads . . .

Winter driving has special hazards that demand special caution on the part of the motorist.

The Commonwealth tries to do its share toward safety. Main roads are kept clear of snow, grades and curves are cindered. But quick freezes and thaws cannot be controlled.

You, the driver, must provide most of your own safety. Chains give you better traction to help prevent skidding, and so do special treads on your tires. But nothing takes the place of slower speed and greater alertness.

Utilize these two factors to get you through the thick and thin of winter driving without accidents.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

Just Between Us—Soc. — Dan Roger hit the nail on the head in his introduction at the Historical Society dinner last night: it was a dinner for young historians. And I don't mean only Jerry Muys, who looks young enough in all truth, but who had a very adult and challenging talk.

Nor do I mean only the Junior Historians who braved the icy roads down from the mountains, nor the young Hostetters who provided the music, but I mean everybody at the meeting, no matter how many years they acknowledge. Anyone brave enough to face that storm to go to a historical meeting is young in heart.

In deference to A. Mitchell Palmer's Quaker background, the place cards were in Quaker grey with a flat black Quaker hat and a greeting that would have looked familiar to any member of the Society of Friends. The meeting date for instance "Fifth Day," and the wish "Thee is heart."

There would have loved Jerry's mopping his brow and remarking "This is as hot as our wedding," and thee'd have loved his young wife, too, and I'm glad Roger thought to mention that she too is a senior in college, and practice teaching in the second grade at the laboratory school.

Incidentally, it was hot. After shivering through the sub-zero temperature all day, everybody hunted out their warmest clothes for the dinner, complete with snuggles—and then sat and steamed gently as the temperature rose outdoors.

Listen To—Bobby Westbrook daily, Monday through Friday, on "The Party Line" WVPO, 10:15 a.m.

Historical Society Hears Defense Of Palmer Career By Jerome Muys At Dinner

A. Mitchell Palmer, Attorney General of the United States under Woodrow Wilson, a strong candidate for the Democratic nomination for president in two conventions, and a citizen of Monroe County, has been made the scapegoat for all the confusion, emphasis on conformity and intolerance following World War II, and has been denied his rightful place in local and national history in the opinion of Jerome C. Muys who spoke last night at the annual Winter dinner meeting of the Monroe County Historical Society.

Muys, a senior at Princeton University, was directed to a study of A. Mitchell Palmer by the fact that although he was a Monroe County man, his name was seldom mentioned in local history, and by the critical references to the "Palmer raid" in college history books.

The dinner meeting of the Historical Society was held at the Penn-Stroud Hotel with about 80 persons present, including representatives from the Junior Historians of Tobyhanna Township; Pocono Township, Barrett, Coolbaugh, Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg High Schools.

To them Dr. Nathan Meyer, president of the Historical Society, presented a book for each society, "Northampton County Heritage" by E. Gordon Alderfer, pointing out that Monroe County was once part of Northampton and figures in the history.

Dr. Meyer introduced the officers of the society, and outlined the activity of the year. During the year, he said, 350 persons visited the historical rooms; newspapers were microfilmed for the state historical library; historical maps were distributed; the curator, Mrs. Horace G. Walters, conducted a thorough housecleaning of the historical rooms; facilities and books were improved; manuscripts compiled.

As the project for the coming year, the Society authorized an oil portrait of Dr. Mary Erdman, founder and first president of the society. They voted to allow the annual meeting dates to be changed at the discretion of the board, and have received an invitation from the Lehigh County Historical Society to pay a return pilgrimage to that county this year, Dr. Meyer said in his report.

The speaker was introduced by Roger Dunning, chairman of the program committee. A graduate of East Stroudsburg High School, Mr. Muys is majoring in Modern European and American History at Princeton University.

Sketching in the outline of Alexander Mitchell Palmer's life, Mr. Muys said that he had been born in 1872 and was a birthright Quaker. He moved with his family to Stroudsburg when he was very young, was graduated from the Stroudsburg Schools and attended Swarthmore College. He was admitted to the bar in the term of Judge Storm and became active in state politics. He was elected to Congress as a representative of the 26th district. Served as judge in the Court of Claims from 1909 to 1915; was appointed Alien Property Custodian in 1917, and Attorney General of the United States in 1917, and died in 1936.

The great raid of January 2, 1920, when thousands of alien radicals were rounded up in simultaneous raids all over the country has been blown out of all proportion to his total career, Mr. Muys said.

The "Palmer raids" have been the target of many attacks from labor and liberal groups, he said, with the most scathing attack coming in 1948 in a book prepared by the Labor Research committee. The raids have been termed as a violation of constitutional rights, as an attack on unions, as an attempt at thought-control and to destroy freedom of speech and of the press, and as Palmer's attempt to gain the Presidential nomination for himself.

In refuting these charges Mr. Muys referred to the Congressional Record of those years, to newspaper articles and editorials of the time, and to other source material he had uncovered in his research.

In sketching the background for the raids, he pointed out that the "Red Scare" in 1920 had reached hysterical proportions with radical elements infiltrating the legitimate attempts by labor to gain its rights. Numerous bombs had been thrown including one which destroyed the front of the Palmer home, and the mass raid met with general approval in the nation as a whole which was demanding some action.

One of the Philadelphia newspapers recently carried a news item about a naval commander who collects German steins with a military history. He has about fifty, some of which date back to the mid-seventeen hundreds. The accompanying illustrations reminded me of the miniature steins in our candy department. They're from Germany too, and are filled with particularly delicious. The price is just $1.19, if you're interested . . . Looking out at the snow as I type, it seems to me that this is just the sort of dreary, cold day one should be thinking of beautiful things—such as the narcissus bulbs now on sale in our gift department. You can purchase the unplanted bulbs at three for 25c. Bulbs planted in a pottery container are priced from $1 to $1.50. A single bulb in a plastic rocking chair planter is just $1.09. "And they're practically ready to burst into bloom this minute," Marion Leedom ad lib.

Mae Coffman reminds me once again that there are still a few fine buys in the $7.50 Vanity girle which has been offered this past week at $5. It's a good girle, and an attractive one, of white elastic with rayon satin panels prettily stitched. Mae emphasizes as its principal features the three inch non-roll band at the top, and the split hip to control the bulging hip-line. Hip, hip, hooray, and all that! . . . Also in our corset department you'll find a Fab-lined Playtex selling for $4.67. This garment sells regularly at $5.95. Maybe the letters "F-A-B" indicate only that it is fabric lined. I prefer to think they mean it's a fabulous foundation. . . . Mardee Wyckoff has returned from New York with some very fine fashion news for all interested women. This year, she says, we will be carrying two new lines—the Johnathan Logan and the Aiglon dresses, both of which you have seen advertised extensively. Mardee expects some of the new spring fashions to be on display soon after inventory—around the end of February to be exact, and among the first arrivals will be some utterly delightful, completely washable rayon prints. If you believe in miracles, you believe in darcion, and these are really "prints charming." . . . Edna Brockman just dropped in to ask me if I'd seen the stunning new shoes just received in our shoe department. "DeLiso Dubs" they are, and, according to Edna, handsome beyond description with heels "high as a house." You can say what you will about high heels, they're absolutely the most flattering type a woman can wear, and not half so silly as the shoes sniled upon by fashion some fifty years ago. I have a pair of the antiques on my desk right now—shoes found way back on a dusty shelf in our stockroom a few days ago. Gorgeous things they must have been when the world was somewhat younger. The shoe itself is all of three inches wide across the ball of the foot, and scarcely an inch wide at the tip. It is of firm, brown leather, with a very extreme Baby Louis heel. That isn't all either—the tip that laced snugly to the calf of the leg was of cotton moire in deep tan, and inside is the label "Dorothy Dodd." Oh, it was beautiful no doubt—but what a torture chamber! About the only thing you could use it for today would be a letter opener, and if that's a pointed remark, well, it's a pointed shoe!

'Your Health'

From The Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania and the Monroe County Medical Society

It was fortunate for Dr. Claudius Amyand, of London, that he had a son who became knighted.

Otherwise, biographical information on the surgeon, who performed the first appendectomy, would have been lost.

Dr. Amyand reported this operation in 1736, and not until recently has it been heralded as a pioneer surgical feat.

The somewhat lengthy title of Dr. Amyand's report reads: Of an Inguinal Rupture, with a Pin in the Appendix Coeci, incised with Stone; and Some Observations on Wounds in the Guts.

Today, this operation is called simply an appendectomy, which is the surgical removal of the appendix.

Medical literature has credited others with the first such operation. Dr. Groves of Ontario in 1583 and Dr. Symonds of London in the same year.

Dr. Mevivier of France was credited with an appendectomy at the Hospital St. Andre de Bourdeaux in 1759.

It was in 1886, that the first appendectomy was performed in the United States.

It has definitely been proved that Dr. Amyand not only removed an appendix in 1736 but the patient recovered.

Dr. Amyand modestly reported that the operation required a full half hour, and the patient was able to dress on the fourth day after the operation.

This seems the more remarkable in that the surgeon was operating for a hernia when he accidentally discovered the involved appendix, which had a pin in it—and he was operating without benefit of anesthesia.

Credit goes to Dr. Amyand, first to perform an appendectomy—to-day one of the frequent operations.

Today Is Deadline For Tax And Amended Declarations

The Internal Revenue Service yesterday issued a reminder to taxpayers required to file a declaration of estimated tax that today is the deadline for making final payment on, or amending 1953 declarations of estimated tax.

"In the case of farmers," a spokesman said, "if they file their final return on or before Jan. 31, 1954 and pay the total tax at that time, they need not file a declaration. However, if a farmer does not expect to file a return by that date, he must file and make payment on a declaration by Jan. 15, and then take until March 15 to file his final return.

Business and professional persons, investors and others subject to filing declarations, amended declarations or making payments today, may substitute their final return, but must do so by today. Where it is not necessary for an individual to amend a return and payments have been made by today, he has until March 15 to file his 1953 return. Generally speaking, wage earners are not involved in the Jan. 15 date because, under the pay as you go system, their taxes are substantially paid in advance by the withholding of income taxes from their wages.

Except for farmers, declarations are due by March 15 of the same year in which the income is expected; thus, most 1953 declarations were due on March 15, 1953 and quarterly payments have been made on them since. "The last of these quarterly payments is due Jan. 15," the spokesman said.

However, some persons, who filed such declarations and now find their estimates were too high or too low, can amend them by filing a new declaration marked "amended" in the upper right hand corner.

If any taxpayer was required to file a declaration last year and failed to do so, or if his circumstances changed so that he first became subject to the filing of the declaration during the last quarter of 1953, he also should file a declaration, or his final return, today in order to avoid or minimize statutory penalties.

"Declarations on 1954 income will not be due until March 15 (the same date as the deadline for filing final returns for 1953) and farmers will again be able to wait until next January to estimate 1954 tax."

Life of Riley

By JIM RILEY
Sports Editor

Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg High schools will clash in the first and last games of every basketball season in the future, if an example to be set next year, proves anywhere near successful. While it's nothing to get truly upset about, I do believe that scheduling games in such a manner, at least on opening day, is not only wrong but is an injustice to the boys who are playing basketball for the respective schools.

Both institutions of learning are currently trying to build their basketball teams up from the depths into which they have fallen in recent years. By scheduling the "Battle of the Boroughs" as the opening game for the two schools authorities in each borough are defeating their purpose. Clashes between these two schools are still the biggest athletic events in the area and they certainly should continue to rule the roost.

The games or events providing the most interest should be the best played and certainly the first game of any basketball campaign isn't the best to be played by a team that year. It's too much to ask a kid trading football shoulder pads for an abbreviated basketball fines.

Neither Stroudsburg nor East Stroudsburg wants to howl to each other—perish the thought. Each will want to play its best men, present its best team and in general do all in its power to topple the opposition. By scheduling an Eastburg-Stroudsburg tussle for opening day, authorities make any kind of planning virtually impossible. Football players won't be able to make the switch in time and basketball certainly won't have the same hold over the populace it would say three weeks or a month later.

Next season's opening of the basketball campaign will find Stroudsburg playing at East Stroudsburg on Tuesday.

December 7, 1954, while the Mountaineers play host to the Cavaliers on March 1, 1955. It is a safe bet that the second game will be the much better of the two, providing one or more of the star engers doesn't come down with an injury or pink eye.

As this column has pointed out time after time, this business of arranging athletic schedules is no joke and only long hours of work and many headaches makes a schedule possible. Authorities at the two schools have their reasons for setting permanent dates for the clash, chief among which is the fact that it gives the schools a pattern on which to work. The two institutions want to make permanent basketball dates, just as they did in football by agreeing to play on Thanksgiving Day.

It will do away with the almost annual rush and uproar over finding suitable dates for the two rivals. It will enable the two schools to play without asking league fees to change dates or requesting one or the other, or both, leagues to build their schedules around the hardwood version of the "Battle of the Boroughs." It will definitely turn schedule making into a lesser task, but it will hurt in other places.

Johnny Q. Public, the guy who shells out the money to keep our school systems operating, will be forced to settle for a second rate game. Coaches John Kunkle, Stroudsburg, and Dick Forster, East Stroudsburg, will have to answer the starting whistle with inferior teams. Kids not in proper condition will have to play and in general the setup appears to have more draw backs than credits. From this angle it appears that sending East Stroudsburg against Stroudsburg on opening day will retard both basketball programs and in no way improve the cause.

The host aggregation jumped into a 10-point lead at the end of the first period and held the upper hand the remainder of the distance.

Points
Bob Miller, former Tobyhanna Township High star, paced the winning attack with 28 points, while Stan "Lefty" Kolodziej and Norman May clipped in with 22 and 17, respectively.

The outcome of the contest was never in doubt as the Miller Cazars scored almost at will throughout the battle.

Gray's Crew Deals Initial Loss To Johnson's

Second Half Spurt Décides Issue, 51-38

Tannersville—Gray's Chevrolet threw the Pocono Mountains League basketball race into a wide open affair last night by inflicting the first setback of the season on Johnson's Diner, 51-38, here on the Pocono High court.

Gray's Chevrolet did most of its damage in the second half, as the two arch rivals battled to the half-way point at 22-22.

The ultimate winner went into a 31-28 advantage by virtue of a 9-6 advantage in the third quarter and then made certain of victory with a 20-10 bulge in the last period scoring.

Johnson's club trailed by only five points midway in the last round, but Harry Warner, high scoring center, fouled out of the game and George Hartsorn joined his teammates a few moments later. With these two high point men on the bench Johnson's club never threatened the remainder of the distance.

Gray's team led 16-9 in the first period, but Johnson's crew came winning back to deadlock the count at halftime with a 13-6 edge in the second round.

The winning aggregation made good on 13 of 26 foul shots, while Johnson's crew hit from the same distance on 12 of 25 charity tosses.

Lyle Krali was the game's top scorer with 21 points as he led Gray's five to victory. Warner and Hartsorn, each with 10 tallies, were the big guns in a losing cause.

From which the winner can get a good, clean shot at the leaders, Hawley and Waymart.

In the other games, both Northern Division battles, Damascus, a winner over Honesdale earlier this week, 64-50, will take on Preston at Lakewood and Pleasant Mount will visit Waymart to tangle with the champion Warrior five.

Traditional Foes
Honesdale and Hawley, long traditional rivals, will square off on the Hawley court tomorrow night. The result of this one will affect the standings in both divisions, as both are "cross-over" teams.

The clash with the Lakers could well be a "make-or-break" contest for the charges of Coach Henry "Hank" Arneberg. A win for the Gold and Blue would put them in good stead for the Hawley game coming up in two weeks while a loss will seriously hamper their championship aspirations.

The local contest will get under way with a junior varsity game at 8 p. m. The varsities will take the floor approximately an hour later.

Baltimore Names New Football Coach

By George Bowen
Baltimore (AP)—Wilbur Ewbank took the job of coaching the Baltimore Colts yesterday with the "sole idea to start a regime" similar to the Cleveland Browns of which he has been a successful part.

Ewbank gave up his job as assistant coach of the Browns to head the job for the Colts, who returned last season to the National Football League after a two year absence.

Both Ewbank and his new employers emphasized to a new conference that his aim is to pattern

Baltimore after the Browns who dominated the defunct All America Conference and have been a prevailing power in the National.

The appointment of Ewbank pushed Keith Molesworth, coach of the Colts in their return to the National League last season, into an administrative job with the organization. A position of executive vice president was created for Molesworth.

Both Don Kellett, Colt president and general manager, and Carroll Rosenbloom, the principal owner, said the changes were made as an expansion move to give Baltimore a winner. The team won only three games last season, while losing eight.

"If hard work will do it, we have the possibility of attainment," Ewbank told the newsmen.

Rosenbloom said that with hiring of the new coach "I feel we now have a man who will help build a winner. We've promised the people of Baltimore a winner. Until we give it to them, we won't be happy."

Rosenbloom said 30 applicants and a list of prospects prepared by the Colts had been interviewed for the head coaching job. "We always return to the successful Cleveland Browns," he said of the search.

The 46 year old Ewbank has been Browns' tackle coach and chief talent scout for head Coach Paul Brown for five years. They both are alumni of Miami University of Ohio which Ewbank coached for 13 years.

The salary question for Ewbank was avoided at the news conference and when asked if it were only a one year contract he replied "I wouldn't be here if it were."

Stroudsburg Quintet Hosts Slatington

Stroudsburg High school will attempt to even its Lehigh Valley League basketball record at two wins and a similar number of defeats on the W. Main St. court tonight, when the Mountaineers play host to a strong Slatington cage machine.

Slatington is currently deadlocked with Whitehall for the number one position in the standings, with a mark of three victories and no defeats.

Stroudsburg on the other hand has won only one of three circuit outings, but extended front running Whitehall before bowing by a 68-64 count on Wednesday, at the Allentown Palestra.

Verdicts
The Mountaineers opened the league season by bowing to Lehigh and then snapped back to decision Catawqua last week.

Whitehall inflicted the second circuit loss on the maroon and white charges of Coach John Kupiec.

Kupiec announced last night that Don Diebler wasn't in school yesterday and was confined to his home with a heavy cold. If Diebler is unable to play in tonight's contest, Bill Carson will take over one of the two forward positions.

Dave Nevil will man the other forward post, while Dick Little handles the center duties. Captain Karl Weingartner and Don Garavito will be at their usual guard spots.

Howard Miller and Wally Adelman also may see action for the Mountaineers.

Tonight's junior varsity game is slated for 6:45 and the varsity battle at approximately 8:15.

Jan. 20 Visit Of Bloodmobile Scheduled For Elks Club, February At Signal Depot

A scheduled blood donation at Tobyhanna Signal Corps Depot has been postponed from Jan. 20.

Depot officials told blood chairman LeRoy Mikels they "were unprepared" for the scheduled visit.

As a result, the bloodmobile station will be shifted to the Elks Club in East Stroudsburg on that day—Jan. 20.

Donations may be made from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m., Mikels said.

The quota will be 221 pints.

This figure is the regular quota of 125 pints, plus the shortage of 96 pints, Mikels said.

In the first six months of the fiscal year the quota was 750 pints.

The blood committee listed the 96-pint shortage. Also during the first six months the General Hospital used 504 pints of blood for patients.

This does not include blood sent to other hospitals for use on Monroe County residents receiving treatment.

Mikels said that to keep the General Hospital supplied the Jan. 20 visit is needed.

The bloodmobile will visit the Signal Corps Depot Feb. 23.

Legion Joins Red Cross In Blood Drive

American Legion members here yesterday were planning ways to get behind a National Legion drive to secure 30,000 pints of blood for the Red Cross.

The program was unveiled at the 30th District meeting at the Legion post in East Stroudsburg Wednesday night.

The agreement between the Red Cross and the Legion was this, according to Vincent Marek:

The Legion is to obtain 30,000 pints of blood a year from among its three million members. In return, any Legionnaire with a paid-up Legion card, or any member of his family, may obtain as many pints of blood as he needs during treatment anywhere in the United States.

Other items of business included distribution of petitions to representatives of the local posts, for circulation among local members.

The petition asks President Eisenhower to prevent Red China from being seated in the United Nations, Marek said. The petition is to be circulated in accordance with instructions of the National American Legion.

Also outlined was the National Legion's plan to stage a "wooden church crusade." Goal is to build 49 wooden churches along the Red border of Germany, Marek said. The churches will be financed by the 48 states and Hawaii. Each church will cost about $20,000. Each Legion post will be asked to contribute $2.

Johnny Ray Sheds Tears

Juarez, (AP)—Crying Johnny Ray wept yesterday as his wife, Marilyn Morrison Ray, was granted a Juarez divorce.

The singer broke into tears as Miss Morrison filed her petition charging incompatibility. The divorce was granted in Juarez First Federal Court by Judge Perando Romero Figueroa.

"I don't think any man likes to see a marriage go on the rocks," Ray said. "I hope some day to marry again and have a home and kids."

Miss Morrison said the divorce was very unpleasant.

"This will be my first and last," she said.

Asked if she planned to marry again, she said "we'll see."

Statue Of Liberty In New York, Not Jersey, Judge Rules In Deciding Sales Tax Dispute

New York, (AP)—Ere you pass the Statue of Liberty again, stranger, heave a sigh for the feeble little colony known as New Jersey. The statue would have been hers, it seems, but for that old bully, New York.

The famed Miss Liberty points her lamp aloft 305 feet above Bedloe's Island, a little patch of land in the harbor southwest of New York.

State Supreme Court Justice Thomas L. J. Corcoran, citing a 123-year-old dispute over the island, nevertheless ruled yesterday:

"Bedloe's Island is within the territorial boundaries of the city and state of New York."

The touchy question was raised anew last December by Mrs. Evelyn Hill, who runs a souvenir and food concession on Bedloe's Island. She got nicked for $2,802 in New York sales and business taxes.

Mrs. Hill sought her money back, claiming Bedloe's Island is in New Jersey and that New Jersey had no right to tax her.

But Justice Corcoran ruled: "The taxes were properly collected."

Actually, the island that the statue made famous is controlled by the U. S. Department of the Interior.

But Justice Corcoran dug back into history to trace the dispute over what state has claim to the island. Attempts to settle the dispute began as long ago as 1826—60 years before Miss Liberty arrived from France.

Justice Corcoran came upon an interesting complaint lodged by New Jersey in 1829.

"In it," the court said, "New Jersey alleged that in Colonial times New York had 'wrongfully and forcibly possessed herself of the said island called Staten Island and the other small islands in the dividing waters between the two states' and that New Jersey was a 'feeble colony, and under a proprietary government and could pose no effectual resistance to the encroachment of the state of New York.'"

In 1833, the two states agreed on a boundary line in the middle of the Hudson River and New York bay. Bedloe's Island was on the Jersey side of the boundary.

But little New Jersey had no heart for further bickering and agreed "the state of New York shall retain its present jurisdiction of and over Bedloe's Island and Ellis Island."

Ergo, Justice Corcoran ruled: "The intention seems clearly expressed that New York should retain whatever interest it had in these islands prior to the agreement."

"There is no question but that if Bedloe's Island is in New York state, it is located in the City of New York by expressed provisions of our state laws."

Well, it probably wouldn't surprise the Indians. Remember how they got done out of Manhattan island?
